

Wearables, Ingestibles, and Implantables

Thursday, November 2, 2017

Milwaukee School of Engineering—Todd Wehr Conference Center
1047 N. Broadway, Milwaukee, WI 53202

The medical possibilities for intelligent, internet-enabled medical devices is vast. To date, the wearables market (think Fitbit, Apple Watch and so forth) has made the most of the early running. But the scientific value for ingestibles and implantables represents a different level of magnitude.

Join Milwaukee School of Engineering and Wisconsin Dairyland chapter of HIMSS at this FREE event to hear an incomplete overview of what is possible today, an outline of the ingredients that are key to a successful product, and a few case examples to watch.
